College Sports.

In the few games that the M.A.C. Base Ball Club has played this year, it has made a very creditable showing, considering the limited practice its members have had.

After playing a practice game with the Amherst College Team, the club opened the season on May 14, with a game with the North Amherst's. A team made up of good material. This game was an interesting one throughout, and proved a victory for the Aggies.

The next game was on May 20, at East Hampton, with the Williams Nursery Team. This game was the best that has been played so far, with the regular players absent. The playing was of a good nature generally. The indicible feature of the game was the batting merit of Newman and Rice. Towards the end of the game the William boys tried the "harding" tactics, with no avail, as the Aggies could not catch.

As cows approach old age and no longer increase in size, their shells, which in youth were frequently accommodated growth of body, are often retained several years, and the creatures may fall to full victims to the strongest sort of parasitism. Barnacles and all sorts of marine growths collect upon the shell, and in many cases almost completely hide the crab. A remarkable example of this may be seen in the British Museum, where has been placed an old crab of the difficult species, with some half-dozen oysters fixed to its back, which, ever increasing, the old crab was doomed to carry to the end of its days. Another curious specimen is that of a hairy crab, which, though not larger itself than a walnut, is saddled with a sponge as high as a man's fist—Norwich Hour.

The Freshmen Team defeated the High School Team in a rather loose played game, on Wednesday, May 26. It was any match game up to the eighth innings, when the Freshmen made five runs. Seeing that they were easily beaten the High Schools tried to induce the Umpire to call the game on account of darkness. This he could not as it was light enough to play a half hour longer. The Freshmen were awarded the game 9 to 0, as the High Schools refused to play.
